The emerging dive exploration market is stimulating yacht program participation to a degree of intensity only imagined by few. As an exploration dive team leader, compressor manufacturer, SCUBA products inventor, and dive/yacht industry veteran I am proud to continue broadening the product & service offering of Brownie's once again. Please continue to visit our various web sites for weekly updates to the most significant YACHT-DIVING resource ever.

Thank you for your continued support.

Robert Manuel Carmichael (RMC)

President/CEO Brownie's Third Lung, TankFill.com and Halcyon

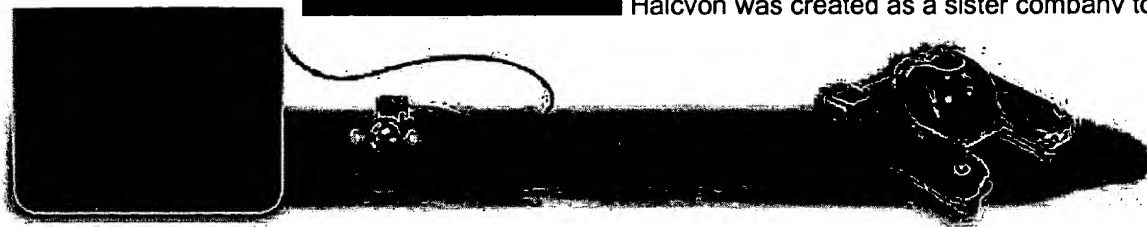

In order to go where we wanted to explore, we had to start at the factor our own.

Mr. Brown (Brownie) started Brownie's Third Lung (BTL) in 1969 based on his own personal desire to dive for tropical with as much possible freedom as possible. The nascent Brownie's Third Lung thrived as a garage industry for 1 years. At age 18, Robert Carmichael became Brownie's first full time (non-owner) employee in 1980. Six years later Robert secured controlling interest in the company, and under Carmichael's leadership phase two of the Brownie revolution began.

After a complete redesign of the Brownie's Third Lung hooka, Brownie's focused its attention on broader distribution and increased local visibility. Recreational hooka diving owes its popularity to the efforts of Brownie's Third Lung over the last thirty years, just as our competitors' products are openly recognized as pale imitations of innovative designs that we've introduced and improved upon in our ongoing quest to build the best hooka diving rigs available anywhere. We opened our first retail store and simultaneously created strong working relations with other key Florida dive retailers. Our store broke single-store sales records three years in a row for Sherwood Scuba during their power days, and today the Southport facility remains one of ScubaPro's top retail sales outlets.
